To stay competitive in the face of increasingly accelerated disruption, many companies need to rethink and retool their offerings and operations. That kind of transformation, however, requires a collaborative effort from all parts of the organization, no matter how different their processes, systems, and cultures have been in the past. Too often, the transformation effort falls flat due to the problems that arise when disparate parts of the company fail to work together with a shared sense ...

The volume and value of medical device deals fell sharply over the first half of the year as the industry contended with disruption related to COVID-19, according to a life sciences report published by PwC on Thursday. The firm tracked a roughly 26% decline in the number of deals and 88% drop in their value compared to the first six months of 2019. Analysts at PwC said the trend is likely a result of deals being delayed by logistical challenges related to COVID-19.
